Eat More Mutton
An All-Negro Village
Miss Fanny Is Wrong
Drys Too Hopeful

CHICAGO'S CAMPAIGN to increase consumption of beef is useful. [illegible] need meat, as a time-[illegible]

THERE ought to be another campaign to encourage the use of mutton. [illegible] but the strongest men [illegible] better food than beef. For [illegible] especially, mutton is better, [illegible] less "nervous" food.

ARDENT drys suggest that President Coolidge, an out-and-out, [illegible] NOT IMITATION, teetotaler, could stop bootlegging if he wanted to — an amusing suggestion.

Raymond G. Carroll reports scores of stills in the Black Hills, "hidden within five miles of President Coolidge's lodge."

Hundreds of thousands of stills are scattered all over the United States, and one city, New York, has 20,000 or more speakeasies.

How could President Coolidge "clean up" that kind of bootleg situation?

SPEAKING of prohibition Cyrus H. Curtis' young writer, Nunally Johnson, who goes to Europe on the Arabic writes in Mr. Curtis' paper about the two high church clergymen drinking brandies in the lounge every night and being excessively good fellows.

TURKEY puts on trial a handsome young woman accused of "attacking religion." The woman, a writer, says in her latest novel, "Religion is more harmful than opium, all prophets are charlatans."

WHEN Turkish "freedom" is older, this young woman and others will know that open attacks are foolish. The Turkish government will know the wise thing to do is to let people read, write, talk, and think as they choose, as long as individuals are not attacked.

The head of the true religion, which each has a right to select for himself in this country, is presumably able to take care of unbelievers, all in his good time. He does not need any earthly help, surely.

TOLSTOI, son of a great man who was usually wrong, is wrong twice in an interview, but wrong in an interesting way.

The real Tolstoi preached non-resistance which never gets you anywhere. His son, Count Leo, says flying from Europe to America, east to west, will never be a success, because the earth [illegible] the other way, from west to east; which is nonsense.

His other statement, that men will live to be centuries old, is also mistaken guessing. Death, at frequent intervals is necessary, as it is necessary to wipe a slate often, that something new may be written.

MEN, undoubtedly, will live to about [illegible] the age of reproduction, as other animals do, which would make 100 an average age for men living wisely.

The sky is the limit. If men [illegible] they should be glad to be [illegible] again, by a better method [illegible] Methuselah. If they go to stay [illegible] should be glad to go when the brain has become incapable of original thought.

SURVEY SHOWS MARION BANKS ARE PROSPERING

Total Resources Increase Nearly Quarter of Million in 12-Month Period

DEPOSITS UP $162,012

Three Banks Now Have Resources of More Than $2,000,000 Each

Although the last 12-month period went down in local history as a comparatively quiet year in business activities, growth of local banks continued, registering an increase of $220,566.13 in total resources and an increase of $162,012.80 in deposits.

These figures are obtained from a summary of the statements made by the six local banks giving a detailed account of their assets and liabilities at the close of business on June 30. All state and national banks in Ohio are called upon annually to report statements based upon their records as of that date.

Composite Summary

A composite summary of reports filed by the six local banks show that the city now has three banks listing resources of more than two million dollars each. Last year only two were in this classification, the third having passed the two million mark shortly before Jan. 1.

Two of these three largest banks are now near two and a half million resources and it is practically certain that at least one will pass that figure before the close of this year.

The statements for June 30 showed that two banks have deposits of more than $1,500,000 with one of them close to the $2,000,000 mark. A third bank is less than $200,000 below the million and a half figure and will probably reach it in the course of the next year.

Total Now $9,355,410.54

Total resources of the six banks on June 30 of this year were $9,355,410.54 and on the same date in 1926 the amount was $9,125,844.41.

Total deposits this year were $6,723,350.14 and in 1926, $6,571,137.34.

Loans show an increase of $120,716.78 over last year, the total on June 30 being $6,483,130.21 and on the same date in 1926 the amount was $6,356,413.43. This summary includes only loans made on mortgages, collateral and other security to local firms and individuals. In addition the banks have extensive investments in government, state and municipal bonds.

FLOOD RELIEF MOVE IS APPROVED BY COUNCIL

Construction of Sewers in Congress and Buckeye-sts Is Sanctioned

City Council at its meeting last night did its bit toward eliminating flood conditions in the vicinity of Buckeye and Davids-sts and Congress and Davids-sts following each heavy rain, when they expressed their approval of the action of the sewer committee in recommending that sewers be built on both Congress and Buckeye-sts from Davids to Henry st, connecting the Davids-st sewer with the Henry-st sewer.

This, according to the signers of the petition asking for the sewers, will relieve the overcrowded Davids-st sewer in the time of a storm and carry the water which would otherwise flood the streets, into the Henry-st sewer which is no larger than the Davids-st sewer, according to the city engineer, but has less territory to drain. This is the first step of council in the project of relieving those parts of the city which suffer from floods during heavy rains.

Impeachment of Indiana's Governor Object of Two Editors in Investigation

Have Possession of 32 Alleged Documents Bearing Upon Purported Connection Between Jackson, Stephenson and Other Notables; Will Be Published Daily

Indianapolis, July 12—Impeachment of Gov. Ed Jackson through a special session of the state legislature is the object of a group headed by Boyd Gurley, Indianapolis editor, and Thomas H. Adams, Vincennes publisher, who started the present political probe, it was learned today.

This group has obtained possession of 32 alleged documents bearing upon the reported connection between Governor Jackson and other political notables, among them D. C. Stephenson, former political czar of Indiana who now is serving a life sentence in the state prison for the murder of Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis.

Day by day the alleged documents will be published, with a view of so arousing public opinion that the members of the legislature will demand they be called in special session, it was predicted.

The spotlight in the political probe has shifted from William H. Remy, Marion County prosecuting attorney, and his aides, to this group. There is no indication that the Gurley-Adams forces will yield their alleged evidence to the prosecutors.

"There is no connection between this office and whatever investigation Mr. Gurley is conducting," Remy said.

Remy would not say whether he would take steps to obtain the 32 documents, which Lloyd O. Hill, Stephenson's attorney, said are in possession of Gurley.

Asked whether a court order would be necessary to garner this data, Remy replied that it might be obtained on a subpena of duces tecum, but would not say whether he would use such a legal weapon.

JONES FINISHES WELL UP IN SECOND ROUND

Shoots Beautiful 71 Over New Course for Aggregate of 147 in British Meet

St. Andrew's, Scotland, July 12—Bobby Jones finished well up in the field in the second of the qualifying rounds of the British Open Golf championship today.

Jones shot a beautiful 71 over the new course today for an aggregate of 147, only three strokes behind Cyril Tolley, who leads the field with an aggregate of 144.

In contrast to his rather spotty play of yesterday, the American holder of the British title was in perfect form today and played golf of the expected Jones sort.

Jones hooked his drive on the first tee but made a pretty recovery to reach the green in two and was down in four. On the second tee, Jones again hooked but once more he recovered, and was to the edge of the green with his second and ran his approach putt up to the pin for an easy four. On the third hole, Jones drove too far to the left. He reached the green with three and made a valient attempt to sink a long putt for a four but was forced to take a five. From that point on, with the exception of hooked drives at the twelfth and fourteenth, Jones played sterling golf and ran off par after par, mixing in birdies at the sixth, seventh, eighth, twelfth and seventeenth. He had three putts at the tenth, fourteenth and eighteenth.

George Duncan, the British hope, probably will not qualify with his 82 today for an aggregate of 162. Duncan's wretched putting was responsible for his downfall.

Detroit, Mich., July 12—A group of business men of Brunswick, Ga., are backing a proposed non-stop flight from that city to Rio De Janeiro, it was learned today.

A Stinson-Detroit plane has been selected.

Paul R. Redfern of Brunswick will pilot the ship.

HEAR COOLIDGE PLANS CHANGE IN SECRETARIES

Sanders Reported To Be Desirous of Seeking Senatorship from Indiana

Washington, July 12 — President Coolidge is contemplating a change in secretaries, according to circumstantial reports reaching Washington.

Everett Sanders, ex-congressman of Indiana who succeeded C. Bascom Slemp in the office, is expected to resign before Jan. 1. According to the reports Sanders is said to be desirous of running for the senate from Indiana. The term of Sen. Arthur R. Robinson expires next year.

Sanders' friends here assert he has never been "happy" in the secretarial berth, and wants to get back to congressional life. Sanders resigned from congress several years ago. At that time he was planning to practice law in Indiana, preparatory, his friends say, to running for the senate.

VIC'S PLAN FOR STATE LIBRARY HELD UNLAWFUL

Attorney General Turner Also Rules Emergency Board Cannot Authorize Funds

ADDRESSES OPINIONS

Library Trustees To Consider Offer To Collect Voluntary Fund

Columbus, July 12—Attorney General Edward C. Turner today characterized as unlawful Gov. Vic Donahey's plan for "decentralizing" activities of the state library which closed its doors to the public at the statehouse here June 30, last.

The attorney general also held that the state emergency board has no legal right to authorize expenditure of state funds with which to defray operating expenses of the state library.

The state library board of trustees is expected to take action on the governor's plan at a meeting here Wednesday.

The library was closed at the end of the fiscal year because the governor vetoed the $120,000 appropriated at the recent session of the Ohio legislature to defray operating expenses of the library during the 18 months' fiscal period which began July 1, last.

Has No Authority

In opinions, addressed today to the state library board of trustees, Turner held that the board "has no authority to distribute to the various state normal schools and universities and to the Ohio Achaeological and Historical Society for the purpose of management and control of the books and property of the Ohio State Library."

The attorney general, also, ruled that "the state emergency board has no authority to allot any party of the money appropriated to it for the purpose of continuing the work of the Ohio State Library from July 1, 1927, to Jan. 1, 1929.

"The act of the governor in vetoing appropriations to carry on the work of the Ohio State Library does not create a "deficiency in any of the appropriations for the expense of an institution, department, or commission of the state for any biennial period, nor does it constitute an emergency requiring the expenditure of money not specially provided by law," Turner held.

To Consider Offer

The library board Wednesday, also, is expected to give consideration to the offer, made on behalf of various state organizations to collect a voluntary fund from the public for the purpose of keeping the state library open until the state legislature has opportunity to remedy the situation.

These organizations include the Ohio Grange, Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, Parent-Teachers' Association, Ohio League of Women's Voters, and Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs.

BUILDING TIED UP AS UNION WORKERS ARGUE

Seven Thousand on Strike Over Question of Who May Lay Marble

Baltimore, July 12—Seven thousand union workers went on strike here today, tying up construction on 53 building projects in Baltimore.

The strikers are all members of unions affiliated with the building trades council.

The tie-up is due to inter-union controversy over whether bricklayers have a right to lay artificial marble. The tile setters and stonemasons deny that bricklayers can do this work.

Meanwhile $10,000,000 worth of construction is held up.

HOUSE WRECKED

Seventh Niles Bombing in Three Years; None Hurt

Niles, July 12—The seventh bombing in less than three years in Niles occurred today when an alleged resort, known as "The Red House," was bombed for the second time within two months. No one was injured.

Josephine Devino, proprietress, and a negro maid, it was stated, were the only occupants of the place when the bombing took place.

The bomb which exploded today blew a hole in a side of the house. The explosive had been placed under the back porch.

Police said they had no clews leading to the identity of the bomber, or bombers. No one has yet been connected with any of the local bombings.

Hearing on Commissioners' Suit Against C., D. & M. Over Crossing Set for Friday

Proceeding Believed To Be Without Precedent in Marion County Court Annals; Traction Company Objects To Extending White Oaks-rd Across Tracks

Suit brought by the board of county commissioners against the C., D. & M. Electric Co. for extension of White Oaks-rd over the traction company's right-of-way southwest of the city, a proceeding believed to be without precedent in Marion County court annals, is scheduled for hearing Friday.

The hearing was originally set for today but postponement until Friday was granted at request of the C., D. & M. attorney, W. P. Moloney.

Prosecuting Attorney Wiedemann, who represents the county in the controversy, says that the suit is the first of its kind brought here in many years and possibly may have no precedent here.

Fixed on Agreement

All crossings in the past, as far as a survey of the records reveal, have been established through agreement between the county and railway companies.

In this case, however, the C., D. & M. maintains that establishing a grade crossing by extension of White Oaks-rd would create needless danger to the travelling public and seriously inconvenience the company in operating its cars and for those and other reasons it seeks to prevent appropriation of its right-of-way. The commissioners ask the court to authorize use of the right-of-way by granting an appropriation order. Should the county win out eventually, value of the right-of-way used for the crossing would be fixed by a jury.

May Be Carried Up

Regardless of what may be the decision in the common pleas court, it is regarded as certain that the case will be carried to the higher courts. This would mean further proceedings lasting probably a year. The controversy has now been in progress since about three years ago, when the county made its first effort to open the road.

Crossing over the C., D. & M. tracks is all that is needed to connect White Oaks-rd with the Prospect-pk. The commissioners maintain that the road extension is needed to establish a thoroughfare into the west section of the city of Marion. Should the extension be granted, the county plans to improve the road in co-operation with land owners. Real estate dealers, it is stated, are prepared to open new allotments if the road is opened and improved.

The commissioners favor a grade crossing, saying that establishing an overhead or underground crossing would be too expensive.

GUARD LEARNS HOW MOTHER, SISTERS DROWN

Private Grant Estep, Tomb Detachment, Summoned Home by Triple Tragedy

Grant Estep, first class private of the guard detachment, 10th Infantry stationed at the Harding Tomb, left for Portsmouth, this morning, after receiving word that his mother, Mrs. Albert Estep, 43, and his two sisters had drowned in a six foot hole in Saltlick Creek, near Clarksburg, last night.

One of the soldier's sisters, Pauline, 8, fell into the hole, and the mother and another sister, Trolley, 13, jumped in the water in a vain effort to rescue her. Farmers in a nearby field heard the screams of the mother and a short time later found the bodies.

Estep has been in the army for about one year, having enlisted at Fort Thomas, Ky. Three weeks ago from the Harding Guard Detachment were sent to the family of the soldier. Estep was given a 10-day leave by Lieut. W. L. Sherfey, in command of the detachment.

The foreign visitors, travelling together, were two business men one from Ireland and the other from Australia. They were enroute to Melbourne, Australia and stopped here to see the Harding home and tomb.

The number of visitors at the Harding home is unusually large this summer, officials in charge state. Since the beginning of the touring season, the place has been visited by tourists representing practically every state in the Union and several foreign countries.

SIX MEN, FIVE WOMEN TENTATIVELY SEATED

Testimony in Murder Trial of Former Canton Chief May Start Today

Canton July 12—Six men and five women were tentatively seated at 1:15 p. m. today, on the jury which is to decide whether or not Barnhus A. Leugel, former chief of police, assisted in the murder of Don Mellett, crusading Canton publisher, one year ago.

Indications were that the jury might be completed and the taking of testimony started late this afternoon. The first jury list of 50 names was exhausted at the close of the court Monday and Judge Frank Clevenger ordered that another venire of 50 names be summoned immediately. Sheriff Ed Gibson and deputies worked until a late hour last night serving the notices.

The trial was progressing much more slowly today. F. Rollin Hahn, chief of defense counsel, was more careful and particular in his examination of prospective jurors. Prosecutor Henry Harter, Jr., objected frequently to the long, hypothetical questions which the defense attorney used.

The defense has indicated that it will not carry on a rigorous cross-examination of any witness unless Jengel's name is linked with the crime.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED

Fremont, July 12—Unable to furnish $5,000 bond, Harold H. Overmyer, 24, is in jail here today awaiting trial on the charge of embezzling $1,895 from the Maccabee Lodge of which he was secretary-treasurer.

FUEL CUT TO 14 CENTS AT SIX STATIONS

Reduction Made When New Concern Places Product on Market at 15

COMPETITION LIVELY

Officials of Several Companies Reported on Way Here for Conference

A gasoline price war which promises to draw a majority and possibly all of the city's dealers into the conflict within a short time was launched today following opening of the new Low Price Filling Station, operated by Maurice Wolfe, of Piqua, at E. Center and N. High-sts, where gasoline was placed on the market at 15 cents a gallon.

Forewarned by advance notices of the new station's plans, full page advertisements having announced the opening and low prices several days ago, five independent dealers in Pure Oil Co. gasoline this morning cut their price to 14 cents.

This action was taken by the dealers personally and the Pure Oil Co. has taken no part in the price slashing, Ernest C. Carl, local manager, stated this morning.

No Action Taken

Inquiries at offices of the Sinclair, Standard, Shell, Columbus Oil and Midcontinent companies, the largest distributors of motor fuel here, brought statements that no action had been taken by any of these companies and that as far as the officials knew none of their independent dealers had cut prices of their own volition.

Officials of several of these companies were reported to be on their way here from district headquarters, however, and it was intimated that some definite course of procedure might be decided upon today.

Dealers offering 14 cent gas for sale at their filling stations this morning were J. A. Key, E. Center and Jefferson-sts, W. F. McMaster, who has filling stations at E. Center and Spencer-sts and on Kenton-av, O. H. Gentheiser, Oakland Heights, J. T. O'Keefe, N. Greenwood-st and the Marion Overland Co., W. Center-st.

Special Grade

All of these dealers handle Pure Oil Co. products. The 14 cent gasoline, they state, is a special grade. The regular Pure Oil Co. product will be continued on sale at 19 cents a gallon, the price which was in general effect throughout the city prior to opening of the new Low Price Filling Station.

The Pure Oil Co. dealers state, however, that the 14 cents gas is of a quality which complies fully with federal regulations.

Maurice Wolfe, owner of the new station, also operates six other stations at Findlay, Piqua, Carthage and Norwood, O., and Muncie, Ind.

Wolfe maintains a uniform price at all of his stations and keeps it at that figure regardless of any action taken by his competitors, he stated today.

Will Stand Pat, Claims

"My price will stand at 15 cents no matter what the other fellows may do," Wolfe said. He stated that price cuts similar to those started here have resulted from fights waged against him in other cities but that he has invariably stood his ground and come out victorious.

Wolfe says that his oil, which sells at 15 cents a quart and 60 cents a gallon, and his gasoline are of standard grades and up to federal requirements in every respect. He sells U. S. Motor gas and Pennsylvania oil.

Modern Plant

Wolfe's local plant, modern in all of its details and located on the city's largest filling station site, had plenty of customers from the time that it opened this morning and throughout the day. He said that he expects sales here to average about 4,500 gallons daily.

At his other filling stations, he states, the average daily sales are 3,000 gallons, with the exception of Muncie, Ind., where the daily output is 8,000 gallons.

Wolfe operates his filling station business as a side issue, his main connection being with the Meteor Motor Car Co. of Piqua, which he says is the largest concern in the country manufacturing funeral cars. He is president and general manager of this company.

Manager Named

He has appointed Howard Colmorgen manager of the Marion station.

FORMER EDITOR SAYS FORD ORDERED ATTACKS

E. G. Pipp's Charges Will Be Published in Hebrew Magazine

Detroit, Mich., July 12—Officials of the Ford Motor Co. and the editorial staff of the Dearborn Independent today refused to comment on the charges made by E. G. Pipp, former editor of the Independent, that Henry Ford personally ordered the publication of every anti-Semitic article appearing in the Dearborn Independent.

Pipp's charges are to be published July 15 in the American Hebrew.

"You fellows are afraid to print those attacks on the Jews. Now, I want them printed and I will take full responsibility," Pipp quotes Ford as saying in 1920.

Ford disclaimed all responsibility for the articles in his public apology to the Jews last week.

Pipp says in the coming issue of the American Hebrew:

"The first direct discussion I had with Ford about the Jews was when he was a candidate for the United States Senate in 1918, two years before the launching of the magazine attacks. It was following the Ford-Chicago Tribune libel suit that we began to hear much more about the Jews, both from Ford and his secretary, Liebold, quite frequently the same expression coming from both of them.

"By midsummer of 1919 the atmosphere became very much anti-Jewish. The Jews were blamed for almost everything. Ford expressing himself and Liebold tickling Ford by repeating the sentiment if not the words."

HONOR O'HIGGINS

Long Lines of Reverent Sympathizers Gather at His Bier

Dublin, July 12—Long lines of reverent sympathizers passed before the bier of Kevin O'Higgins in the mansion house today, while the police continued energetic efforts to run down those responsible for the assassination of the vice president of the Irish free state.

Seven young men have been taken into custody by the police, including George, son of Count Plunkett. These youths are held under formal charges of being members of an illegal organization. The police refuse to disclose results of their questioning, but it is reported generally that they expect to obtain information from the detained men which may lead to the discovery of the three assassins.

BROKE ON BRIDGE!

Cleveland, July 12—Common Pleas Judge Pearson has set July 25 as the date on which he will hear arguments and further evidence in the divorce suit of Mrs. Helen Grasselli, against Edward G. Grasselli, son of the late Eugene Grasselli, of chemical fame. Mrs. Grasselli admitted that she had been given an allowance of $24,000 a year, but that despite this she is now in debt.

SIX DROP OUT

Lake George Calm for Long Swim But Water Is Icy Cold

Hague-on-Lake-George, N. Y., July 12—The icy waters of Lake George caused six of the 140 entries in the 24-mile $10,000 marathon swim to drop out of the contest today after the first quarter mile of the race. Although the lake was calm with ideal weather conditions above, the water registered a temperature of 55 degrees.

The marathon swimming classic started at 9:45 a. m., with many boys and girls among the entries. The battling was five to one that none of the entries would finish.

At the end of the first three miles, Ernest Vierhetter, German swimmer of the English Channel, was leading the field by about 300 yards.

Scout Camp John A. Owens Has "Goat" Selected From 45 Youths Enjoying Outing

Associate Camp Director Describes Novel Method of Choosing Official Fun Maker Among Groups Enrolled for Vacation Periods

BY H. WARD EWALT, JR.
Associate Camp Director

I have searched the pages of universal literature in a vain effort to find some treatise or poetic work setting forth the finer qualities and merits of that worthy—Mr. Goat. The pages of history fail to reveal the name of the tribe or nation that bowed down before this quadruped although superstitious man has worshiped almost every other animal in one period or another of his religious evolution.

However there is one locality where the "goat" is a sacred being, whose favor is much sought after by the poor unfortunates that are his inferiors. This king of "goatdom" reigns over no less a domain than the precincts of Camp Owens. The 80 acres of the camp property is the extent of his landed rights, and 45 live-wire fellows are his subjects, faithful in deed, but plotting revenge when his regal majesty returns to civilization.

Wholesome Fun

Much of the success of any red blooded Boy Scout's camping experience depends on just the proper amount of real wholesome fun. Of course the boys learn many useful things which they can use throughout their lives, but the things that they are apt to remember longest and enjoy talking about are the little mischievious pranks that they play or have played on them. In an effort to control just this kind of fun there is an "old family custom," as the boys would say, that each camping period must have its "Goat." The election of the "camp goat" is one of the most discussed events on the two weeks program. The first question that many of the boys ask upon arriving in camp is, "When are we going to elect the 'goat'?"

Select Candidates

Early in the camping period the staff selects such boys as seem eligible for this position of honor, and appoint a staff member to be the campaign manager. The candidates are carefully selected for the "goat" must be a "good sport," and he must realize that there is a limit to which he can carry his pranks. He must be enthused to the extent of being worthy of the distinction of being elected chief fun maker for the entire camp, for in reality this is the duty of the "goat."

There are certain restrictions that are placed on his activities. The most important rule, and the greatest law of them all, is that he must not, under any circumstances do anything that will destroy property or that will lead to the destruction of property. On visitor's day the "goat" is "called off", as he is every afternoon before inspection. His majesty must observe all of the scheduled requirements of the day, including the one that says that all lights are out, and all activity ceases when "taps" are sounded at 9:30 o'clock.

Make Speeches

But to proceed with the election of our "goat" for two days before the vote is taken the campaign managers make lengthy speeches at each meal setting forth the fine points of their candidate, and at the same time pointing out the weaknesses of the other ambitious eligibles. The would-be "goats" have a great variety of planks in their platforms, and run on anything from a meal ticket to a Pullman ticket. Anything from the color of his eyes to the way he has his hair cut may be the issue that will insure the success of one aspirant, or spell the doom of another.

After much campaigning for the favorite the fateful day arrives which elevates some fortunate fellow to the enviable post of "camp goat." The camp solemnly files past a row of tin cans, one for each candidate, in one of which he drops a roofing nail, which is his vote. The entire camp must vote. From "chief" down to the smallest camper they all vote. The staff casts its ballot, and then "Mack" solemnly leaves the kitchen, and after in the can of some lucky boy. The in teh can of some lucky boy. The reason for so much importance being attached to "Mack's" vote is that "Mack" has that uncanny sense that always picks a winner.

Count Votes

After a committee has carefully counted the votes the entire camp is assembled on the north shore of the swimming pool, and each lodge sends one "husky" to assist in the installation of the "goat." The candidates, each handled by four stalwarts are on the south bank being swung to the count of one, two, and on three the man who has received the majority of the votes is tossed high and wide into the swimming pool. From the moment that his head appears above the swirling waters to the end of the camping period the person of the "goat" is sacred, and no one dares to harm him in any way. There is generally a large crowd of visitors on hand to witness the ducking of the "goat" so he generally begins his program by swimming along the bank splashing the cheering campers who have elected him.

Two Goats

This summer Camp Owens has had two "goats," the first was Paul Webb of Troop No. 10, Marion. This period Dan Fox of Troop No. 2, Kenton, is the honor individual. Scout Fox is the son of Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Fox of 732 N. Main-st, Kenton.

Yesterday morning the camp awakened to find 50 bathing suits swinging from the flag pole on the parade grounds. What a struggle there was as every fellow tried to extricate his own suit from the multicolored assortment that had been swinging from the flag pole.

NOTES TOTALING $2,400 ARE ISSUED FOR WORK

Plan Provides for Sewers in Kensington-pl and Edgewood-dr Work

A note for $1,900 to pay the property owner's portion of the cost of building a sanitary and stormwater sewer on Kensington-pl from Church-st to the southern terminus and another for $500 to pay the property owner's portion of the cost of building a sidewalk on the south side of Edgewood-dr from Prospect-st to the west terminus was provided for by City Council at its meeting last night.

The issuing of notes was termed an economic measure by City Solicitor George T. Geran. Because of the comparatively small amount of money involved ,the issuance of bonds would be a difficult matter for the reason that bonding companies do not care to purchase such small issues.

On the other hand to issue bonds for a group of improvements when only one or two are ready, was declared by the solicitor to be a waste, the city being required to pay the interest on the entire issue pending completion of the improvements which may extend over a period of several years.

By selling notes and taking them up with a bond issue when the improvements are completed also eliminates an issue greater than is needed, it was pointed out by the solicitor, as the exact cost is then available. The notes were issued for a period of one year.

When you consider trade-in offers on your present car, be guided by these facts

1 When you trade-in your used car for a new car, you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.

2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

3 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

4 The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

5 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

6 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

TWO DRY AGENTS AND JUSTICE SHOT DOWN

Wholesale Arrests in Four Counties of West Virginia Are Expected

Bluefield, W. Va., July 12—Prohibition agents and state troopers today began scouring the mountains of McDowell, Wyoming, Mercer and Raleigh counties, the two state prohibition officers and a justice of the peace who were shot down by alleged moonshiners Monday night while wholesale arrests are expected as a result of the ambush.

First details of the ambush were learned late Monday night when Eli Watkins, Bluefield, stumbled into Keystone, a mountain town of McDowell County.

State troopers were organized into posses at Beckley and at Williamson, while deputy sheriffs and special officers were organized at Welch.

According to Watkins, Gus J. Simmons, Beckley, and Sam Lester, state prohibition officers, and R. H. Toler, Wyoming County justice of the peace, were dropped by mountaineer bullets as the four men were making their way into the mountains.

The three men, according to Watkins, dropped at the first fusilade. Certain that he could not cope with the ambushed attacking party, Watkins said, he fled from the spot and ran 10 miles into Keystone to spread the alarm.

ATTORNEY ASKS QUICK INDICTMENT OF MAN

Armed with Mass of Circumstantial Evidence Against Norwegian

New York, July 12—Armed with a mass of circumstantial evidence against Ludwig Lee, District Attorney Dodd was to go before the King's County Grand Jury today to ask a quick indictment of the Norwegian carpenter for the murders of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Brownall and Mrs. Alfred Bennett.

Although more than 24 hours of grilling failed to wrest a confession from the accused man, District Attorney Dodd was confident that the circumstantial evidence comprised an "open and shut case." He expressed eagerness to place his evidence before the grand jury, and said he expected an immediate indictment.

While medical examiners assembled the dismembered bodies, parts of which were found in six different points in Brooklyn and Manhattan, detectives investigated Lee's story of his business relationships with Miss Brownall, lessee of the house where the butchery took place.

According to the accused man, Miss Brownall proposed marriage to him, and they planned to go to Oslo on funds provided by her.

On the basis of this, and other points of circumstantial evidence, Dodd predicted today that an indictment would be obtained.

Lee murdered Miss Brownall for money, according to Dodd's theory, and killed Mrs. Bennett Saturday night when she happened upon him disposing of Miss Brownall's hacked body.

COMPANY SEEKS JUDGMENTS IN COURT SUIT

Action Started for Foreclosure of Mortgage on Residence Property

Suit for foreclosure of a mortgage was started in the court of common pleas today by the American Building Savings & Loan Co., against John R. Smith, Mina R. Smith, H. W. Straub and Walter J. Robbins in which the plaintiff asks two judgments, one for $6,508.15 and the other for $352.65.

The larger amount repreeents a first mortgage on a residence property described as lot No. 3 in the Lucas & Seffner addition to the city of Marion, owned by John R. Smith and wife. The smaller amount is for taxes alleged to have been paid by the loan company.

Sale of the property is sought and the defendants Straub and Robbins are asked to set up any claims they may hold.

Wants Costs Secured

William Tharp, defendant in a suit for $2,300 brought in the court of common pleas yesterday by J. A. Rensch, filed a motion today requesting that the plaintiff be required to secure costs, due to his being a non-resident. The motion was filed by Tharp's attorney, L. E. Myers. Rensch sued for alleged damages received in an automobile collision.

Seek Foreclosure

The General Motors Acceptance Corporation, an automobile financing concern, brought suit in the court of common pleas today against Bryant E. Corwin, administrator of the estate of W. F. Corwin, for $279 alleged to be due on an automobile purchased from the Marion Buick Co.

The machine was purchased by W. F. Corwin, who gave his note, secured by a chattel mortgage, to the Marion Buick Co. and the note was later transferred to the General Motors Acceptance Corporation. The original amount was $558 and Corwin stopped payments after paying all but $279, the petition alleges. The plaintiff asks for foreclosure of the mortgage and sale of the machine.

Appointments

Appointments made in the probate court today are as follows: Julia Smith, administratrix of the estate of Hugh V. Smith; Ralph and Cliff Schleenbaker, administrators of the estate of Lillie Schleenbaker.

SEE RENEWED HOPE OF SOLVING POTTER DEATHS

Convicted Birger Gangster To Be Quizzed as to Possible Motive

Marion, Ill., July 12—A new investigation into the death of W. O. Potter, former U. S. district attorney for eastern Illinois, and five members of his family found slain in their home here last fall, was started today by State's Attorney Arlie Boswell. This action followed a rumor originating in Benton at the Birger murder trial. It may throw new light on the tragedy.

Since Art Newman has turned on his former chieftain, he has been accusing him of the responsibility of one murder after another in addition to the one which he, Birger and Izzy Hyland are now standing trial for in Benton. In each instance evidence has been uncovered which, at least in part, would seem to confirm his charges.

This latest development, connecting members of the Birger gang with the death of Attorney Potter and his family, cannot be traced directly to Newman. But information was sent to Williamson County's prosecutor that if he successfully interrogated Rado Millich, a Birger gangster given a life sentence last week for the murder of Ward Jones, a fellow conspirator, that he might uncover the real reason for the Potter tragedies.

Chicago Plans a Lindbergh Tower.

Many suggestions of ways in which Lindbergh might be honored and tribute paid to his exploit have been offered, but of all of them perhaps that which would most appeal to him is the Chicago proposal to erect a huge air beacon mounted atop a 1,820 foot tower which would have 1,200,000,000 candle power with a range of 300 miles.

Plans for the construction of such a tower in compliment to Colonel Lindbergh have been submitted to the Chicago authorities by Samuel Insull, Jr., chairman of the centennial committee of the Electrical Association of Chicago and engineers of the association have drafted the specifications.

The idea of a mammoth beacon tower, the tallest in the world, as a tribute to Lindbergh and a central attraction at the centennial to be celebrated by Chicago in 1933 originated with Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the general centennial commission.

Leading construction companies estimate the major costs as follows: A 1,320 foot tower, ,000,000. Elevators, rising 1,000 feet a e, $100,000. Flood lighting, $313,400.

tentative plan calls for a tower that e a monolith of the stepped-off type ecture, with bastions and turrets and g system running from base to spire, g walls of expanded steel formed in y as to present a series of horizontal vanes," Mr. Insull said. "We be- addition of lighter-than-air craft facilities and a radio directional ap- for aircraft would provide no serious ring problem.

ceipts of the Woolworth tower from sers in 1926 were around $100,000. in Chicago the various towers draw tens thousands of sightseers every year, and the ndbergh Light tower would serve as an even greater attraction.

"The structure, as contemplated, would not only be a grand spectacle for our centennial celebration, but aid in making Chicago an aviation center as well as furnishing a magnificent monument to a heroic young man who has stirred the hearts and the imaginations of men of all nations."

Chicago has in her proposed tower a recognition of Lindbergh and his marvelous exploit which would be practical. It would coincide with his desires and aims for the development of heavier-than-air transportation in this country. It is in every way in line with his hope to see each large city in the land perfectly equipped to facilitate passenger transportation by aeroplane. And we believe that the fact that it would be self-sustaining would appeal strongly to him. He has made evident that fussy feathers, and tinsel, and ornament do not appeal strongly to him. The proposed tower would be very much in line with the character and characteristics of the man.

Looking to the Public Health.

It is not at all hard to see where decided benefit may accrue to the local public as a result of the ordinance providing for the physical examination of those handling foodstuffs. This, of course, is predicated upon the theory that the provisions of the ordinance are rigidly followed.

There are so many provisions looking to the maintenance of the health of the public, any and possibly all of which might be nullified so far as their protective effect is concerned were diseased or unhealthy persons—tubercular persons or typhoid carriers, let us say by way of illustration—permitted to handle our foodstuffs. Such a course would unquestionably be the weak link in the health chain.

There should be health and cleanliness in the handling of all forms of foods and foodstuffs, and it would seem to us that all protective measures in this regard would be idle if they applied only to that stage immediately preceding the sale of foods and foodstuffs to the consumer. To make the protection of the public effective, health and sanitary regulations should obtain from the producer to the consumer. Nothing less will spell safety to the public, and even with every precautionary measure there is always that danger in foodstuffs which comes from deterioration, in which, as we understand it, the chief danger of ptomaine poisoning lurks.

Health Commissioner Welser may feel assured that he will have the hearty approval and support of the public in any and all reasonable measures he may employ looking to the safeguarding of the public health.

The report recently made by the commissioner is very gratifying. A city in which no single instance of foodstuffs being handled by diseased persons is found, in which not a single case of typhoid fever is reported, is surpassingly fortunate. Let us hope that such a condition may continue to obtain.

Passing of John E. Hopley.

The announcement in Monday's papers of the death of John E. Hopley, of Bucyrus, Sunday afternoon, brought a feeling of deep regret to his many Marion friends. They did not think of him as one who had lived seven years beyond man's allotted three score and ten. They did not recall him as one who for the past four years had been a physical invalid. In reading of his passing their thought of him was as he was in his forties and fifties and sixties—they thought of him as one mentally active beyond the ordinary, as the clever raconteur, the wit, who had made many a banquet or other social or fraternal gathering especially pleasing for them. They knew of him as a writer, as an editor. They knew of his success in his consular posts at Southampton and Montevideo; the part he played in politics was familiar to them, but that which most of all appealed to them was the sterling manliness of the man, touched and brightened by his sunny humor and companionable ways.

It was these qualities which especially endeared him to his local fraternal friends, who had special opportunities for knowing him as he was, and in recognition of the esteem in which he was held locally, one of our fraternal bodies—Marion Council, No. 22, R. and S. M.—conferred upon him exceptional recognition, making him its only honorary member. Perhaps no better illustration of the esteem in which he was held locally could be offered.

It is hardly necessary to say that Sir Thomas Mackenzie, of New Zealand, who holds that the Prince of Wales should marry an American girl, has the hearty moral support of all American girls.

It's the same old story. Criminals are never safe. They live in dread of the law and in fear of their companions in crime. There's absolutely nothing in the game.

Poems That Live.

THE HARP THAT ONCE THRO' TARA'S HALLS.

The harp that once through Tara's halls
The soul of music shed,
Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls
As if that soul were fled.
So sleeps the pride of former days,
So glory's thrill is o'er,
And hearts that once beat high for praise
Now feel that pulse no more!

No more to chiefs and ladies bright
The harp of Tara swells;
The chord alone that breaks at night
Its tale of ruin tells.
Thus Freedom now so seldom wakes,
The only throb she gives
Is when some heart indignant breaks
To show that still she lives.

Body Is Temple of Soul.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A few days ago I had a beautiful letter from a New Jersey lady. She conveyed to me a sentiment which is worth repeating. It is this:

"The body is the temple wherein the soul reposes. It is therfore incumbent upon us to keep that body immaculate and beautiful as a fitting abode for a treasure so inestimable and divine."

She refers to an address I made recently in which was expressed a somewhat similar sentiment. I had stated that in my opinion the body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, and that it is incumbent upon up to keep that body fit as a church is kept out of respect to the spirit of our Master.

I have the feeling, as I have told you many times, that there rests upon us a moral obligation to keep the body in perfect repair. I believe the time will come when men and women will be ashamed to say they are sick. All too often illness is the result of carelessness. With the exception of injuries and the infectious diseases, almost every physical disability is our own fault.

The stated formula in the regular visitations of those in authority is to ask the supervising board of a church this question: "Is the church in good repair and properly insured?"

I think we might well ask ourselves every day: "Is this temple of the body in good repair? Are we using it in such a manner that we may expect it to live out its normal expectancy and be useful through that period of time?"

I think we might well ask ourselves every day, "Is this temple of the body in good repair? Are we using it in such a manner that we may expect it to live out its normal expectancy and be useful through that period of time?"

I agree with my correspondent that it is incumbent upon us to keep that body immaculate. We are violating our obligation to the Divine Creator if we neglect to do this.

It hurts me just as much to see a friend neglect his body and expose it to disease and disaster as it does to see a beautiful vase ruthlessly cast upon the floor and shattered into a million pieces. It hurts more, indeed.

We would think that the owner of a piece of porcelain who would treat it this way was wrong in his mind. What must we think of an individual who treats his body, infinitely more precious, in a manner just as destructive?

Health is a thing within reach. We can have it if we will. It is wicked, as I view it, if we do not possess it.

It is not enough for the schools to teach the "three R's." Every child should be impressed with the sacred obligation of caring for the body. He should be taught how to care for the body. Simple rules of hygiene should be familiar to every child.

The church, as I see it, is not doing its full duty, unless it impresses upon the congregation the fact the body is the temple of the soul. It is God's gift, and we should be taught to regard it as such.

In the home should be taught those intimate things having to do with sex and life and birth. There should be impressed upon the child a sense of tenderness and respect for the body.

When we approach the subject in this spirit, disease will become less prevalent.

Editorial Comment.

CARE FOR THE TREES.

The people of Kansas City are particularly fortunate in their possession of trees, both native and planted. Such standard shade trees as the elm, the maple and the box elder do especially well in this climate and soil. There remain wonderful examples of forest trees, saved from the clearing process that preceded the development of the city. These and other shade trees grow rapidly here, and the result is that Kansas City's residence streets and private grounds, even including many that are comparatively new, are well shaded and beautifully adorned.

It is a satisfaction to know that the park board is giving treatment to such of the fine old park trees as are showing decay and soon might be lost to these playgrounds. A splendid tree, well placed, is worth the cost of saving many times over if it may be saved by tree surgery.

But what is even more important to the city at large is tree trimming and the thinning out of overcrowded spots. The city has a forester with a helper or two. They are not enough to look after the trees along the streets. The need of extensive trimming is obvious in all but the newest sections. Lack of trimming has made it difficult to keep the parkways in grass. This difficulty results in indifference toward the upkeep of the parkways and sometimes to the upkeep of premises generally.

Whenever trees are clearly too thickly set, whether along the street or on private grounds, they should be thinned out. Fewer trees, encouraged by reasonable freedom to take rounding shape, are much better than too many trees, encroaching on one another until they all are lopsided. The same thing is true of shrubs, but shrubs, being much more easily handled, are better cared for than trees. The tendency in setting out new grounds is to plant too thickly. This is not realized until the rapid growth reveals it. Either there should be less planting or there should be courageous thinning later on.—Kansas City Star.

A SUPER FIRE-ENGINE.

New York has a super fire-engine which will pump a thousand gallons of water per minute to the top of the Woolworth building, the tallest of skyscrapers. The most powerful engines in the New York department, except the latest, pump 750 gallons a minute, and at fires as high as the twenty-fifth story of a building two of these engines must be hitched together. New York has a high-pressure water district below Thirty-Fourth street, and it is said that the new engine will be useful if that system would break down. North of Thirty-Fourth street are a great many buildings to the higher stories of which the older style engines can not pump water without being hitched together. That causes loss of time. The cost of the super engine, which has just gone into service, was $14,500, which is not a great price to pay for an engine of such power. There are no buildings in Washington, and it is not likely there will be, to require water to be pumped as high as the Woolworth building, 792 feet, but that the new engine pumps a thousand gallons of water a minute might recommend it to the Capital. That an engine of this kind has been built must not divert Washington from consideration of its need for the central part of the city. Until now a high-pressure water system is the last word in fire fighting. Far greater power can be put behind streams of water by a stationary engine than by the most powerful traction engine to be conceived. But in addition to a high-pressure water system Washington should have engines of maximum power and the engine just added to New York fire department is a valuable hint.—Washington Star.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A letter from Dr. Grenfell, who is giving his life to helping folks in far off Labrador, is interesting. He says: "I don't think people in the United States quite realize how primitive we are in the North. The odd thing is that simplicity and honesty and unselfishness go together. As I go around the world I seem to notice that the advent of modern civilization seems to displace them."

Are we paying too high a price for this civilization of ours?

Every little while somebody bobs up in court and asks to have his name changed. He doesn't like the sound of it or somebody laughs at it or something else is the matter with it. New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 12—A year ago Tin Pan alley was picking at the coverlets, having lapsed into the gray languor preceding the end. Scores of lyricists, composers and plugers were turning to new trades. Hollywood filled with hit writers, angling for film titling jobs.

Several big publishing houses moved from expensive quarters to loft coops near the Rialto. Outside of Ellen Mackay's husband only a handful of songmakers had incomes beyond four figures. Then suddenly business began to pick up.

It has not yet reached the old-time flourish but there is growing evidence of prosperity. Laws protecting the industry from piracy were strengthened, but chiefly Tin Pan alley adopted a new slant. It turned from jazz with a collective disgust.

Tunes became a little more refined. One of the sweeping hits was a melody with an old hallelujah hymn book refrain. Old-fashioned sentiment was stressed. Senseless inanities failed to click. And no one seemed to care whether the boys got back home to their Mammies or not.

One of the most successful youths in Tin Pan alley these days is Bud DeSylva who writes lyrics for such stars as Al Jolson. His income is said to be around $60,000 a year. He is a sleek-looking fellow who could imitate one of Joe Cook's three Hawaiians without a make up.

Writing songs seems especially a young man's game. Very few are more than thirty and the majority are in their twenties. They have the bingo-bango manner of their trade—a world of self assurance and a flair for flashy clothes and smart cracks.

Opportune topics if published at the auspicious moment will often make a tidy sum. Several rang the bell with song glorification of the flight of Charles Lindbergh and the death of Caruso and Valentino and even the ghastly Snyder murder was inspiration of one short-lived money maker.

Commuters may rent lockers in the New York terminals. Many keep evening clothes there. They come in for dinner and the theater early, dress and slip back into our clothes after the play. A commuter, it seems, feels conspicuous on a train in evening clothes. Evening clothes somehow suggest taxis or private cars.—Copyright, 1927.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Friday.

It was decided at The Hague conference that a declaration of war must precede war; that an ultimatum was not sufficient.

Andrew Carnegie expressed the view that yellow press was the greatest menace to world peace.

"Big Bill" Haywood was testifying in his own behalf in his trial for murder at Boise, Idaho.

The Star told of a surprise given Earnest Berkley, of Morral, by the Morral Citizen band, the evening before.

The Republican county central committee, the Star said, had met at the office of L. McNeal, the night before, to arrange for the change in the matter of nominations, the primary law having gone into effect.

Edward Duffy, of Columbus, and Anson Sanford, Henry Ruhl, Harry Fies, Ernest Weston and Edson Bush, of this city, were camping and fishing at Duck lake, near Grawn, Michigan.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. E. Lill, of Chicago avenue.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis was considering the amount to fine the Standard Oil company for rebating.

The W. B. Denman home on south State street was damaged by fire.

Paul Bertram gave a delightful organ recital at the Lutheran church at Prospect.

The safe in the dental office of C. B. Emery was cracked and $15 in cash and $15 worth of gold leaf taken.

Marion with Burk pitching defeated Newark twelve to one.

It was intimated that the Grand opera-house would pass to Nixon & Zimmerman, of Philadelphia, which would mean its probable control by the theatrical trust.

Clarence Weber suffered the fracturing of his left arm while wrestling with a companion.

Myrtle Holt, by her next friend, through Attorney W. N. Harter, brought suit against the village of LaRue for $5,075. While playing with a number of little companions she started to run through an alley and tripped over a wire stretched across it, breaking one of her arms.

EDWARD C. STOKES.

Edward Casper Stokes was born at Philadelphia, December 22, 1860. He has engaged in banking at Trenton, New Jersey, since 188[illegible]. Stokes was superintendent of the city schools of Millville, New Jersey, from 1889 to 189[illegible]. He was a member of the New Jersey assembly 1891 and 1892 and of the senate 1892 to 190[illegible]. In 1905 he took office as governor of the state, serving until 1908. Stokes was the first president of the New Jersey Bankers' association.

Stokes, condemning our immigration laws recently said:

"I do not believe in unrestricted immigration, but neither do I believe we should regulate immigration by an arithmetic formula. What we need is selected immigration, based on quality and not quantity.

"Our present immigration laws are dangerous and destructive. We try to Christianize the foreigner and then tell him that he, a Christian, is not fit to mingle with us. He thinks us hypocrites. Christ said, 'Come unto me.' We should be a little more friendly and a little more diplomatic, rather than insulting to our friend.

"America is needed in the world today because of the breakdown of the British empire. Formerly the policeman of the world, this empire is now broken up into separate governments. We are going to have rebellions and wars unless America can take over the leadership and make the people of other lands good citizens of their countries. But we can not do this by offending them."

CITY LIGHTING CONTRACT IS EXTENDED TO 1930

Counvil Votes To Continue Old Rates: Find Old Agreement Had Expired

An ordinance providing for the extension of the city lighting contract with the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co., to Jan. 1, 1930, was passed by City Council at its meeting last night.

The action of council followed the discovery that the present contract expired more than a year ago but due to an oversight no action has been taken relative to a new contract. The present contract, for the period of seven years, was accepted by council in 1920 and the same rates which were in effect at that time and which continue in effect, will govern the charge until 1930.

The extension of the contract was made with the approval of the officials of the electric company and the city.

ANOTHER MARION MAN IS FREE OF RHEUMATIC PAIN

Kidneys Weak, Painful; Caused Intense Misery; He Says Konjola Was Real Blessing.

"I believe Konjola has made me one of the happiest men in this city, because it was a real blessing to my health, and I am free of the awful rheumatic pains I was suffering, and I want to indorse this wonderful new medicine to others who are suffering," said Mr. C. W. Bartram, a very well known citizen of Marion, who lives at 268 Nye Street, this city, who is one of the latest residents in this vicinity to come forth with his indorsement of this surprising new Konjola medicine, which The Konjola Man is explaining in person to large crowds who are calling at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, throughout each day.

MR. C. W. BARTRAM

"For about 15 years I had rheumatism," continued Mr. Bartram. "The pains would come in my back and legs. I was always losing a great deal of time at work, and I kept going from bad to worse until I was just about on the verge of giving up entirely. The joints of my knees were so stiff all the time that I was limping, and had to brace myself. My kidneys were very weak, and this caused me to rise at nights 6 or 7 times, so that by morning I was all fagged out, from lost sleep, and such stiff, sore feelings across the region of my kidneys that I couldn't straighten myself up.

"As bad as I was, this Konjola took hold of my cause and seemed to go right to the very source of my trouble. It seemed that every time I took a dose I could feel the effect of this medicine. It certainly cleared up my system, and in a very little while I could sleep the whole night without getting up a single time. I felt better in the mornings, and then my back was free of pains and aches. Then the swelling in my knees disappeared, and I could walk without limping. Now I don't have aches or pains of any kind. My appetite is increased, and I feel better health all over.

"Yes, I found Konjola to be a great blessing, and after I know what wonderful things this medicine will do I am always recommending it to others."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy. (Stump and Stuck, Inc.) 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is now on sale by all of the other good druggists in every worthy town or city in these United States.—Adv.

AN ADVICE COLUMN

Married Indifference

BY VIRGINIA LEE

WHAT part does indifference play in the breaking up of homes? It may be only apparent indifference, the acceptance of love and attentions in a perfunctory way because one is accustomed to them and depends on them as one does on the daily food and rest.

But sometimes the wife, sometimes the husband, decides that this apparent indifference is lack of love and appreciation, and when they find that they get more of the latter from others, their allegiance wavers.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Let me ask you a question. Why do wives cease to realize that their husbands need a great deal of attention and courting, even after they have been married for some years? They love them and feel terribly abused if they direct their attention toward some other woman. They blame the other woman mostly, but all the while they are perfectly oblivious to the fact that they, themselves are to blame.

"Here is one instance. For years my family and neighbors of ours have been friends and have been visiting back and forth, always to the enjoyment of every member of both families. They are middle-aged people with one grownup daughter, living a happy married life as far as married life generally goes; that is, mostly somewhat monotonous, I suspect. The man is alert, courteous, appreciative of fine and beautiful things. The wife, however, is reserved, distant and denies him all the little expressions of courteous and intimate relationship. The result is he is paying attention to me, in a perfectly proper and open manner, of course, such as reserving the finest flowers for me, sending the most delicious fruits from his garden, and always is ready with a pretty compliment and courtesy.

"I feel that these things are due his wife and she is noticing it and grieving about it, but still will not make an effort to change things in her favor. She could if she tried. The man loves her. I am in a peculiar situation. I cannot offend the man by refusing to pay attention to him. He is too well bred and the whole affair is not serious, but I feel that morally I am not doing the fair thing. I want to shout to the wife: 'You goose, you goose, don't you see what you are missing? This all could be yours if you would try and overcome your stubbornness and relent somewhat in your stiff conduct.' I like her very much and do not want to be the cause of unhappiness to her. What shall I do? RACHEL"

It is just possible that the woman is naturally reserved and can not change her attitude—can simply suffer in silence. There are such people, you know. Why don't you tell her what you have me—indirectly, of course, in a general way—so that she may see whither things are tending? And I think I'd unobstrusively eliminate myself from the scene, if it is possible.

CHAPTER FIFTY-FOUR

"What you say does not change my way of thinking, Ali," said the first voice. "I still contend that with the wizard's aid we would have had an easier task ahead. Who knows? Perhaps the Sheikh Tahar el-Hassan will join the Spaniards and the sheikh has two thousand hard bitten fighting men in the army he calls his Swords of the South. Truly, if he joins the enemy our task will be harder."

A holy man caught the last exchange of words and with true fanatical fervor his shrill, piping voice lifted in a warm appeal:

"Follow Allah, for Allah leads the True Believers, doubting one; Allah fights only for moslem and the True Faith. Only the offspring of jackals can doubt the power of Allah. Our hosts shall roll over the infidel dogs as the waves of the sea roll over the sands of the shore."

Ahead, Larry could hear the ghostly gaits skirting and the tramp of feet was never-ending in its steady, monotonous thumping across the sun-baked earth.

The maching columns entered the long, narrow defile in the hills to the blaring accompaniment of the skirling bag-pipes and the trumpeting of the goffars. On either hand towering walls rose, slanting and rugged, covered for the most part with scrub argan fir, lotus trees and wild figs. It was in Larry's mind as he entered the shadows of the pass that if these religion-mad Berbers were ensconced on the rims of these towering walls, hidden and waiting, and the Spanish forces were to march into this defile, they could make short work of their enemies.

It had been a plan of this nature that he had intended giving to the Marabout Group if, back there in the Temple, it had become necessary for him to play a trump card to save his life. Of course, if that had actually come to pass he would have striven mightily to get word to Omar ben Medjad and trust the latter to relay it to the Spaniards so that the latter would not have been massacred in a surprise attack from above. But he had not been forced to reveal his plan—the plan he had made so much mystery of to the holy men—and now he was glad.

Something like a swift flash of light struck him across the eyes, then the distant humming of a powerful, gasoline-propelled motor drummed on his ears—the sound deadened by distance, yet recognizable nevertheless. His eyes lifted swiftly and he saw high above a dead gray shape, up, perhaps, three thousand feet!

Swiftly, he realized that Omar ben Medjad had, indeed, sent messengers ahead, men who had left obviously even before the mouloud. Now, it was plain, the end of the long, mystery-trail, the long intrigue-filled trek through the hills was nearing. What would come of it eventually, only Allah himself might say. But the main thing now was the fact that the Spanish columns were advancing, pitifully weak as he knew they must be, and more prompt than was their usual wont. But here they were, marching bravely, with hearts undaunted, into the Atlas to meet the Moors and pit their trained warrior minds against the fanaticism of the followers of Mohammed.

Larry had no way of telling anything whatsoever of the Spanish strength, save as he knew it to probably be if one might judge from the numbers of soldiers kept in its far-flung Moroccan outposts, but it was against reason to suppose that it amounted to anything near the impressive showing the marabouts had mustered—an army that had grown, too, as it marched by reason of the coming of allies from tribes that were not of the Berbers, but whose every thought and instinct were linked with those of the Seven Tribes.

As they entered the pass, according to the most conservative estimate he was able to make, he visualized the marabout strength at fully twelve thousand. Against these he imagined the Spanish might oppose, say, fifteen hundred, counting in the neighborhood of twelve hundred Partisans and soldiers from the Submissive Tribes. Of course, the Spaniards had cannon and airplanes but here in the mountains where the planes would find it well nigh impossible to descend, and where it would be a task fit for Napoleon himself to handle the guns and maneuver them to advantage, it seemed to Larry that the balance was all in favor of the marching, fanatical Berbers.

Now other eyes caught sight of the airplane and a great shout went through the Moorish ranks. A voice near Larry—the same that had been bewailing the loss to them of the wizard—spoke up:

"Even as men have said the wizard predicted, a bird that is no bird and which carries men, soars aloft to menace us."

A jarring boom, muffled by distance and softened by reason of having traveled far, reached them. A thrill leaped through Larry's brain and down his spinal cord, for he had recognized the sound of a cannon.

Now came an uproar ahead and a rocking, ripping blast. A shell had reached into the Berber ranks, licking here and there as it exploded, mowing down men like the African sun might melt away an icicle.

The Berber ranks were jockeying for position and then men of the horses, the Moorish cavalry, formed from a tribe that had sent these men to them only the night before, prepared to advance. Soon the clattering beat of horses' feet on the hard earth rocked through the pass and the cavalry was off to the charge, thundering away as might the light brigade have charged at Balaklava. Despite his lack of sympathy with their aims, despite his whole-hearted desire to see the entire rebel horde wiped out, stricken from the face of the earth, Larry felt himself thrill a little at the utter bravery of this cavalry charge, which was now going forward in the face of more shells from the hidden, far off cannon.

Recipes for New and Novel Dishe: Household Ideas and Suggestions

Fricasee of lamb is better cooked the day before it is to be used, as the fat will have a chance to rise to the top and harden and may be removed. The potatoes may be cooked with the meat. A crisp lettuce salad or a combination vegetable (with peas) salad is appropriately served with the lamb.

Uniform Cube Crystals so it pours

That's the secret of this salt's great convenience; why even "when it rains, it pours."

The secret, too, of why it makes food taste better. Because cube crystals do not stick and lump together; every grain dissolves and does its job of seasoning.

Madden 10-Term Interview Thought Mistake by Party

Democrats Wonder Just How Many Copies of Talk To Issue

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 11—Representative Martin B. Madden of Chicago may well thank his lucky stars that he was just sailing for Europe when he gave out that "Ten Terms for Coolidge" interview.

Martin B. Madden

What would have happened to him if the Coolidge-ites could have caught him before he made his getaway, isn't pleasant to think about.

For quite awhile after reading the Madden offering, officials at Republican national headquarters were too flabbergasted to speak. Then they began trying to make up for lost time, working at it in eight-hour shifts ever since.

To quote 'em wouldn't do, though. Such talk's excluded from the mails.

The only thing the Democratic committeemen are worrying about is how many million copies of the Madden spiel to issue as a campaign document of their own, for next year.

NO observing person can have failed to notice how nervously good Coolidge-ites shy away from the notion that either Cal or his followers favor even three presidential terms—let alone 10—for anybody.

Those who have intimated that Cal's renomination would be a bid for a third crack at his present job are none of his friends.

The Democrats have done their best to give that impression, of course, but it's been discounted from them, as deliberate dirty work.

A few Republicans, with White House ambitions of their own, have suggested the same thing, but the motive was so evidently selfish that their hints have fallen on pretty stony ground.

THE "third term bogey" simply failed to produce a scare.

Clearly, nobody believed that C. Coolidge meant to hang onto the presidency indefinitely.

At all events, nobody intended to believe it on the strength of his rivals' say-so.

If he said so himself, or if some of his real supporters admitted it, that might be different—but naturally nobody dreamed of such a ridiculous thing.

At this juncture along came Congressman Madden with the remark that Cal could have 10 years if he wanted 'em.

PICTURE to yourself Martin B. Madden!

If ever there was a Republican wheel horse, he's it.

He's served 11 terms in congress and is just starting on his twelfth—22 years, going on 24.

He's chairman of the super-powerful appropriations committee, a leader from the word "go"—has been referred to as "the most useful man in the house of representatives" a million times if he has once.

He's "administration spokesman" three-quarters of the time.

A conservative, cautious, cagey old guy!—never before known to go off at half cock!

He's the gent who proposes 10 presidential terms for Cal.

NEEDLESS to say, Martin didn't mean "10 terms."

He merely meant to say "pooh, pooh" to the idea that another term for Cal would be three.

But what a man means to say signifies nig in politics. What he says is what counts—and what Martin actually said was "ten terms."

That it will queer Mr. Coolidge would be to assume entirely too much. It isn't likely to queer him in the convention and it may not queer him at the polls, but it won't do him any good—that's a cinch. On the contrary, it will embarrass him a whole lot.

The longer Congressman Madden stays in Europe, the better it will be for Martin B. It won't be too late for him to be spanked for quite awhile.

And such a break for so wise an old boy! If he's seasick all the way over and all the way back it will serve him right.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MADGE APPREHENSIVE

HOW long Philip Veritzen's discussion of his plans for the coming theatrical season would have lasted were it not for an interruption I do not know. Thrilled by his apparently unconscious tribute to my understanding of his problems, lost in fascinated interest at the brilliance of his thoughts translated into words of rare strength and beauty, I had no idea of the passage of time until a chilly little breeze struck my shoulders, the percursor, I realized, of the evening coolness, and I shivered involuntarily.

Mr. Veritzen left a sentence in midair and rose abruptly.

"You are cold," he said solicitously and added with authority, "Your cloak."

He took the wrap from the chair across which the waiter carefully had laid it, and unfolded it. Without protest I rose and he assisted me into it; then seating me again with the deferential courtesy which is his, he turned to Lillian, bent over her drawing board in the absorption which is always here when she is working. I have heard Dicky say that Lil would keep on drawing through an earthquake if only the tremors permitted her to hang on to her drawing board and keep it in front of her.

"What ho, Comrade!" he said, smiling as he crossed the balcony to her side, lifting her coat from a chair as he went. "Come down from the rigging long enough to realise that it is getting chilly."

Characteristically she finished the stroke of her pencil and made another before she looked up at him. Then she flashed a glance at me, laid down the pencil, rose leisurely from her chair and held out her arms for the coat Mr. Veritzen was holding.

"Thank you so much, old dear," she said, smiling at him. "Not alone for the coat, but for the chance to work in this heavenly place. I've accomplished marvels. But what o'clock must it be?"

She twisted her wrist watch so that her eyes rested on its face and gave a little gasp of surprise. A surreptitious glance at my own a second before had shown me the same startling information.

"Five o'clock!" she exclaimed, "and we're hours and miles from home."

"Not an appalling number of either," Mr. Veritzen said. "There's only one question to be decided. Shall we wait and have supper here before driving home, or shall we sup at that restaurant on the Drive overlooking the river and the Palisades after we get back?"

"The Drive restaurant by all means for me," Lillian answered decidedly. "It will be moonlight tonight, and nothing could be more heavenly than supping there with the river just below. Do I know you well enough, Madge, to be sure that you echo my sentiments?"

"Assuredly you do," I told her, smiling.

"Then," Mr Veritzen said briskly, "we'll just have a fortifying cup of tea up here and start immediately afterward."

Lillian put her arms akimbo and sneered at him.

"Because you can imitate an anaconda and still keep your 'figger' is no reason for less fortunate people like Madge and me to try the same stunt," she told him impudently. "You don't want tea, anyway. You'll find the drink you want on the way out while we are getting settled in the car. So—let's go."

Mr. Veritzen laughed, evidently experiencing the amusement with which Lillian's intimates receive her sallies.

"As for wish, of course," he said. Then he turned to me.

"If you don't mind helping me with these papers," he suggested deferentially, and I bent over the table with him, while he swiftly separated his manuscripts and notes into two piles, one large, one small.

"We've gone exhaustively into these," he said, indicating the larger pile, which he swiftly packed away in portfolios. "But these"—he picked up the smaller bundle, fastened it securely with rubber bands and put it with the portfolios in the emergency bag—"we have still to go over."

With a sudden return to realities, I wondered apprehensively when and where he meant me to share in the "going over" process.

FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and cost and fifty cent bottles, any drug-free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this sour-ing waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cents. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—Adv.

Organs Removed from Bodies of Children, Taken to Toledo

POLICE RECORD OF WILBUR HAND IS REVEALED

Alleged Bandit Arrested 17 Times in Seven Years, Officials Say

Galion, July 12—A total of 17 arrests within the past seven years is the police record of Wilbur Hand, alleged member of the hold-up gang which robbed the Commercial Bank of Galion, two weeks ago, according to a report received from police authorities in Toledo where all of the arrests were made.

Following Hand's action in presenting himself to bank authorities and police officials here last week a close check-up of his previous record has been made. The last affair in which Hand figured, police say, was a cabaret duel in Toledo last November at which time he killed Wilbert Wilzbacher, alleged rum runner. Later Hand was acquitted of the charge on a self defense plea.

The other man held in connection with the robbery, Harry Zillick, is said to have confessed to operating a bootleg and gambling place in Toledo until a month ago, when the "Cave" as it was known, was abandoned.

Although action was expected to lower the amount of bond which has been placed at $50,000, no motion has yet been filed. George B. Price, of Toledo, is attorney for Hand, and J. W. Hackett will represent Zillick.

Bucyrus Library, Established 20 Years Ago, To Enter Broader Field of Activity

BUCYRUS, July 12—With the Bucyrus Public Library board planning and looking forward to the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the library's establishment, which will take place some time in the autumn, a greater circulation and a broader field of activity and influence is enthusiastically reported by the librarian, Miss Grace Fuller.

The twentieth anniversary should have been celebrated on June 15 but it was thought best to postpone it on account of there being so many other civic activities at that time.

Half Year Record

The first half of this year 1927 has been exceptionally satisfying from the librarian's point of view. From January 1 until July 1, 1,634 more books were issued than for the corresponding period in 1926. Furthermore, this number was 609 in excess of the library's greatest recorded circulation.

The report of the librarian made at the close of the year 1926 showed that the percentage of classed books was greater in 1926 than it had ever been before. Efforts are being made to make the record this year even better than that of last.

Among the improvements made in the institution so far this year has been the installation of a sanitary drinking fountain by the Bucyrus Federation of Women's clubs. The local Current Events Club has created a small endowment amounting to about $40 which is used in purchasing books. Among the most noteworthy contributions from this source are Harper's Classical Dictionary, a book of folk costumes and one of verse. The Catholic Women's Women's Study Club presented the library with a Catholic Encyclopedia.

The regular addition of books as maintained by an endowment fund. The total amount from this fund which is available for the remainder of the year is $600. The number of books purchased depends upon the cost of the individual volumes but the librarian estimates that the annual additions to the library number about 1,000. There are about 20,000 volumes on the shelves now, together with many periodicals.

The building was erected by the Carnegie Foundation.

LUCAS COUNTY OFFICIALS IN DEATH PROBE

Dale Sams, Thrice Widower, Declares Arrest and Investigation "Frame-Up"

Kenton, July 12—Vital organs from the bodies of two children, Mary Sams, 7, and her brother, Robert also 7, which were exhumed in Grove cemetery here Monday afternoon were taken back to Toledo by Lucas County officials and Toledo detectives last night for further examination and chemical analysis in an effort to determine the cause of their deaths.

The father of the children, Dale Sams, Toledo, former well known Kenton resident, is being held by Toledo police on suspicion during the investigation. Officers say that insurance was paid after the deaths of the children.

May Exhume Wives' Bodies

Further developments in the case will depend now upon the results of the present probe and of the final examination of the vital organs, Toledo officials said. They also stated that the bodies of Sams' three former wives and that of his mother, all buried in the cemetery here, would be exhumed later if they found it necessary.

Exhumation of the bodies was prompted by the investigation of Toledo officials following the death of Mary Sams, May 2. Robert Sams died in November, 1925, at the home of relatives in Hardin County, following a gunshot wound suffered August 9, 1925. The boy's mother died a few months prior to the boy's death.

Upon his own admission, Toledo officials said, Sams said he has had himself arrested twice on insanity grounds. He was arrested Saturday at noon as he was returning to his home from a Toledo plant and after being examined by Toledo officials it was decided to exhume the bodies.

Sams Married Again

Mr. Sams is said by officers to have married again, his present wife living in Toledo. "It's a frame-up," was Mr. Sams' only comment Monday, it was said.

According to local officials present during the autopsy and who reported that the vital organs had been taken to Toledo for analysis, Coroner Charley Henzler, Lucas County, located a 22 calibre revolver bullet imbedded in the spine of Robert. The bullet also was taken back to Toledo.

An order to exhume the bodies was obtained from Sheriff John W. Crooks, Hardin County, and L. B. Brown, county prosecutor. Present during the investigation at the cemetery were: Prosecutor LeRoy Hunt, Lucas County, his assistant, Cecil Stickney; Coroner Charles Henzler, Lucas County, his assistant, Dr. Theodore Zbinden, and W. J. Call and George B. Timiney, Toledo detectives. Dr. R. G. Schutte, by right of his official position as Hardin County coroner, and Waldo Haudenschield, deputy county sheriff, were also present.

Shot While Sleeping

Assistant Prosecutor Stickney stated from his office in Toledo last night that the examination of the vital organs would require at least two or three days at the least and that no new action in the case would be taken until after the completion of the analysis.

Robert Sams died three months after he was shot Aug. 10, 1925, by a man believed to be a prowler in the Sams home in Toledo. The child was shot as he lay in bed with his younger sister, Mary, and his father. Mary was found dead in bed Tuesday, May 3, 1926, after retiring in apparently good health, it was said. The bullet that claimed her brother Robert's life the year previous narrowly missed her.

Dale Sams was born east of Kenton and previous to going to Toledo more than four years ago lived on Resch-st, Kenton.

Cunningham was accompanied by his father and his brother, Newton, both of whom are members of the Vernon Heights Tennis Club. First round of play in the tourney the winner of which will be awarded a cup, was started at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Finals were to be played Wednesday.

The local lad is at present a student and three-letter man of Bluffton College. He excelled in football, basketball and tennis. He will be a sophomore at the college next fall.

"Ted" was a member of the Harding High tennis squad for three years in his sophomore, junior and senior years. He graduated from Harding High in 1926 where he was also a member of the football eleven.

In his high school days, Cunningham teamed with Thorley Sargant, who now resides in this city, won the doubles championship of Marion. He was also just narrowly defeated for the singles championship in his junior year.

Athletes from all over the country are expected to take part in the annual tourney being held at Culver this week. This is the first time that the local courtman has entered the contests, there.

GROOM DEMPSEY FOR FIFTEEN-ROUND BOUT

Walsh Declares Ex-Champ Is in Fine Form After Spending Time in Open

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 12—In the face of the fact that there is not more than one chance in three that his fight will go the limit, it was evident today that Jack Dempsey was being pointed for fifteen rounds with Jack Sharkey, and no less, on the night of July 21. The average man, having been tossed into a foot race with Nurmi, would give everything he had in the first 300 yards in the perfectly legitimate belief that whatever happened after that would lie in the lap of destiny.

But Dempsey, ordinarily one of those all or nothing birds if ever there was one, apparently is not to gamble this time. He, it seems, is to do something he never figured to do when he was great. He is to go in there imbued with the idea that the winner of this fight may have to be determined by the vote of a referee and two judges, instead of by a left and right to the goatee.

Dempsey Looks Great

It all sounds like a lot of bread crumbs to me but the evidence of Dempsey's present style goes as nothing more than a waist-high foot one, right through the middle. The Dempsey shift is gone, because a man who stands on the flat of his left foot can not shift any more than a corner stone of a skyscraper.

Dempsey looks great. But so would any other man who had spent the last three months in the open, indulging in the proper amount of physical exercise and watching his diet. Even a consumptive begins to look like a matinee idol after he has spent a large portion of his time in the Arizona desert.

They are talking Dempsey down here and, frankly, it isn't a bad hunch. That pitiful exhibition against Tunney can't be laughed off with a calliope and there is no reason to suspect that the young man should be a great deal better for having added another year to his life. It is the general understanding that a man doesn't get better as he grows older and darling, Jack is growing that way with every tick of the clock.

TRINITY BAPTIST, EPWORTH MEET

Trinity Baptist will meet Epworth No. 2, baseball team in the feature game of the Sunday School Leagues at Central Junior High Diamonds, tonight. The game will start at 6:15 o'clock.

Baptist and Lutheran teams are tied for first position in League No. 2. Two weeks ago Epworth No. 2 defeated the Lutheran nine. Seven other games will be played in the two leagues tonight.

Marion Gets Legion Meet

Locals Win Honors in First Golf Tourney Held at Indian Lake

The next American Legion Middle States golf tournament, scheduled to take place in September, will be held on the Marion Country Club course if arrangements now under way are worked out successfully.

In the first Legion tournament held Sunday at Long Island, Indian Lake, the team representing Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162 of this city finished in fifth place in competition with 24 other teams entered by Legion Posts from Ohio and Indiana.

Tentative plans for staging the next contest at the Marion Country club were launched immediately following the meet at Long Island and in the event that the arrangements materialize, the local golfers are expected to make a strong bid for first honors.

In addition to the team finishing fifth, Clifford L. Gorton won third honors in the list of individual scores.

The Marion team consisted of Gorton, Henry W. Hane, Dan L. LaMarche and Dr. E. H. Morgan. Greenville Legion Post finished first and was awarded the tournament cup. The scores were as follows:

Greenville 699, Osborn Post of Dayton 701, Springfield 714, Sidney 718, Marion 720.

Gorton's score was 42-42-41-39, placing him third in a field of 100 contestants. He received three golf balls as a prize award.

The Long Island tournament was sponsored by George Cultice Post No. 6 of the American Legion. It was the first Middle States golf contest ever staged exclusively for American Legion members in Ohio.

Definite action in regard to the proposed tournament will probably be taken at the regular meeting of Bird-McGinnis Post Wednesday night.

LOU TIES BABE'S MARK AS YANKS BEAT BROWNS

Teammates Each Have Uncorked 29 Homers; Indians Drop to Senators

New York, July 12—Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth are again tied for major league home run honors both having uncorked twenty-nine to date.

If this pair of sluggers of the New York Yankees keep up this lick they will have an impressive total at the end of the season. By putting on a trifle more steam they can beat Ruth's glittering record of 59 homers in a season.

Gehrig tied Ruth in the seventh inning of yesterday's game against Detroit when he slugged one into the right field stand. It was the first homer Gehrig had hit since the Fourth of July. It helped the Yankees defeat the Tigers 8 to 5.

During base running won two other games in the American League yesterday. Bucky Harris, Washington manager, stole home in the tenth inning and gave the Senators a 3 to 2 victory over Cleveland.

The Chicago White Sox downed the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 6, on the fast base running of Outfielder Bill Barrett. With two down in the ninth Barrett singled, stole second, went to third on Hoffman's throw went wild, and scored when Flagstead fumbled the ball in center field.

Ty Cobb's batting was a feature of the Philadelphia Athletics' 7 to 6 victory over the Browns. Ty got three hits, one a homer with a man on base.

The only game played in the National League proved that old Grover Alexander can still fool the batters. The St. Louis veteran pitcher allowed the Phillies only four widely scattered hits and the Cardinals won an easy victory, 7 to 0.

SWITCHMEN AND EXCAVATORS IN TIE FOR SECOND

League Leaders Hold Positions by Defeating Howitzers, B. of R. C. and Legion

Erie Office, holder of first place and the Marion Excavators and Erie Switchmen, tied for second place in the Association League, emerged victors in three exceptionally close baseball contests played in the league, last night. The league leaders, with seven wins and one loss to their credit, retained their lead on the first position by handing the Howitzer Co. squad a stinging defeat of 6 to 5 in one of the closest and exciting contests of the season.

Excavators and Switchmen, bringing their total of victories last night to six and with two defeats each are waging a fierce battle for the right to sit in second position. The shovelers last night took the decision over the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks by a 2 to 1 talley while the railroaders romped over the American Legion nine, 7 to 4.

In defeating the soldier team by the scant score of one run, the Erie white-collared lads garnered but six hits while at the same time the losing team bingled 10 safeties. Errors were abundant on both sides.

After scoring a tally in the opening frame, the Howitzer squad came back strong in the third with three runs and in the fourth with two making the score five and three at the opening of the fifth after the Office team scored two times when at bat.

The score stood at the 5-3 count in favor of the khaki boys until the Erie came to take their last bat in the seventh. On two home runs by Irwin and Miller and an error which brought Colvin around the sacks, the Office team was good for three scores which made the tally read in a different way than when the eventful inning started. Pitcher Colvin put the losing team down one, two and three fashion in the last frame. Amick had a good day in the box and managed to smash out a three bagger in the fifth period.

Although the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks touched the Excavator twirler for six hits while the latter team only was able to mark up but two, the railroaders were victims of unlucky breaks and their safety wallops accounted for nothing.

The single run of the fraternal order came in the fifth when Ballenger raced home on successive hits by Vermillion and Williams. The Excavators scored in the opening inning and in the sixth. Gustin and Leffler of the shovelites and Jones of the Clerks socked the pill for second sackers. Midlam and Gilmore were on the mound for the winners and losers respectively.

Not much competition was evolved when the Switchmen put the American Legion to rout. The Legion who have not succeeded in talleying a victory this season were helpless in the onslaught of the thundering trainmen. Fourteen hits were obtained off Knappenberger, a majority of which were timely. The war veterans were issued nine by Greenland, the winning tosser.

Griffith, second baseman of the Switchmen, knocked three of the four balls offered him for safe hits. Snair and R. Dutt smashed the ball for four of the Legion bingles.

ToomireHurls Perfect Game

Crestline Downed with No Hits or Runs by Local Tosser as Butlers Win

The likeness of Toomire, star twirler of the Butler Store baseball team, was tacked up in the Marion sports hall of fame today, following his brilliant performance in staging a no-hit no-run game over the Crestline K. P., at that city, last night.

The local tosser had his own way during the entire game and was given superb support by the infield and out field of the Marion squad. The Marion nine garnered a total of 12 runs and 19 hits in the fracas.

Myers and Bigford of the Marion nine featured the play by smashing the horsehide for home runs. Bigford also accounted for a three base and a two-base hit. Shults, Neimeyer and Cram whacked the ball for three bases. Neimeyer succeeded in getting two singles besides his triple.

In winning the no-hit, no-run game Toomire, struck out eight men and gave no passes. Greenberg the opposing pitcher was knocked out the box in the third inning after the locals had scored nine talleys in the first two frames.

Outstanding on the Marion team was the play of Kenneth Monk who won two rounds and lost one. Cecil Newell and Wilbur Cavines also finished the tourney with two wins and one defeat. Other Marion golfers were victorious in their play in every round.

Best play of the Bucyrus caddies was made by Houck, Staley, Frank and Russell. Nolan and Grant Hanawalt, Donald McAninch and "Sheets" Fraser were the other Marion players.

The local team will travel to Delaware, next Monday morning to take on the caddies' club of that city in a tournament. The Marion club has issued a challenge to any youthful golf team of this city for a two-game series.

TO HAND OUT DECISIONS AT NEXT MEETING

Lack of Quorum at Commission Conference; Three Questions Brought Up

Although handicapped by the lack of a quorum, three questions involving Marion Recreational Baseball teams, were brought up before the Commission at the Y. M. C. A., last night. No action was taken but to announce that decisions on the questions would be meted out at the next meeting to be held in the near future.

Emanuel Fogle, player of the Eagle baseball team, faces a possible temporary suspension or expulsion from the league entirely, as a result of a run-in with Umpire Wiley in a game with the Kappa Alpha Phi in the Commercial League last Friday, according to commissioners, last night.

Although no action has been taken to expell the player from the games, investigations have been under way and it is expected that a decision on the matter will be made when the commission convenes in the future. In the meantime Fogle will be permitted to play.

Umpire's Version

According to an umpire's version of the affair after watching Fogle become angered at a decision of Wiley who called the player out on a run to first base, the criticism of the decision was without grounds. After objecting to his decision on the play, Umpire Wiley benched Fogle and later ordered him from the diamonds.

A decision will also be given at the commission meeting in the case of the Forest Lawn-St. Mary's contest played last Tuesday night at the Marion Steam Shovel grounds.

With runners on first and third bases, a batted ball hit Umpire Ralph Bowers and fielders of the Forest Lawn squad were unable to recover the ball before all runners were safe on the next base, with the man on third base scoring. The umpire declared that only the man on first base and the player who hit the ball were permitted to advance and so the player on the third sack was replaced there. Clarence Silva, manager of the Catholic team in his protest maintains that the runners were all permitted to advance. St. Mary's lost, 6 to 5.

Due to rain, last Tuesday night, members of Presbyterian team No. 2 claim that they were informed at headquarters of the league, the Y. M. C. A., that no game would be played. As none of the players reported on the field, the First Reformed squad, with a full team, claimed a forfeit upon the non-appearance of the opposing team. When the time for the start of the game arrived, the rain had slacked and the Reformed nine was ready to play.

A letter, informing managers that umpires are to decide when games will be played in the case of rain is expected to be sent out by the secretary of the commission before that body meets to take definite action on the question.

John Clark, president of the commission was in charge of the meeting. Other members were F. O. Rudolph, secretary, Earl Smart, E. G. Siefert and L. A. Keller.

JIM BARNES TURNS IN BAD SCORE AT TOURNEY

Rain Soaks Greens and Makes Play Difficult; Misses 12-Inch Putt

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 12—While a drizzling rain came down, and skies threatened a momentary downpour, competitors in the second day's play of the British open golf championship found tricky greens a great hindrance today.

Jim Barnes was one of the first to pay the penalty of the treacherous rain soaked greens and turned in a 79 for the second day of play.

Barnes was up on the green in good shape most of the way, but his putts refused to go down and he had three putts at the first, third, fourth and fifth holes, his twelve-inch putt at the third missing and causing a sensation. His card follows:

Out 5-4-5-5-5-4-4-3-5—40.
In 4-3-3-6-6-4-4-5-4—39.

SHIP BRINGING ARMY AVIATORS HOME ARRIVES

Airmen Reunited with Wives at Quarantine; Big Celebration Planned

San Francisco, July 12—One million residents of San Francisco and Oakland today welcome home Lieuts. Lester Maitland and Albert Hegenberger, first men to fly to Hawaii.

The liner Maui, bearing the adventurous fliers, nosed through the Golden Gate in the early morning haze—just two weeks to the hour from the starting time of the first non-stop jaunt to Honolulu.

Arrival of the Maui in San Francisco Bay sent a dozen army planes breasing into the sky. Flying in squadron formation, the planes hovered protectingly over the big flag-draped liner.

At Quarantine the airmen were reunited with their wives, happy because their husbands are returning safe; proud because they carried out the hazardous venture so nobly. Both women traveled 3,000 miles to welcome their husbands home. Mrs. Maitland came from Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Hegenberger from Boston. Fatigue and a bad cold kept Mrs. Hegenberger in bed yesterday, but a more physical ailment could not have confined her today.

Patrick on Hand

In addition to the wives of the aviators, a boatload of officials—army, navy and municipal—swarmed aboard the Maui at Quarantine. Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, head of the army air service, was in the delegation. Only official orders from Washington kept General Patrick from risking his life with Maitland and Hegenberger in essaying the flight to Hawaii.

Recognizing that the official demonstration is only secondary, the welcoming committee will give the fliers two hours of privacy with their wives just as soon as the Maui is warped into dock. The parade up Market-st, from the embarcadero to civic center, began at 10 o'clock.

Honorary Citizens

At Civic Center the fliers will become honorary citizens of San Francisco and will make short replies to the official welcome of Mayor Rolph. After luncheon, Oakland, from whose airport the birdmen soared away, will claim them for the rest of the day.

Crossing San Francisco Bay on a ferry, Maitland and Hegenberger will head a military parade in Oakland starting at 3:30 o'clock. Later they will revisit the municipal flying field, where they taxied off in their big three-motored Fokker only a fortnight ago.

A community dinner in the Oakland Auditorium at 6:30 p. m. and an evening fete on the shores of Lake Merritt are other programmed events in honor of the brave army fliers.

Dry Arrests Reach New High Record of 80,000 in Past Year, Federal Chiefs Say

Greater Number of Violations Than in Any Volstead Year

Washington, July 12 — Despite the fact that hip-pocket toters and home brewers virtually were unmolested by the federal government, prohibition arrests in the year ending June 30, reached a new high record of nearly 80,000, it was announced today.

Federal agents arrested 20,000 more persons than the year before. A majority of those apprehended were accused of major violations of the law, including conspiracies against the government, smuggling and bootlegging operations.

Several international smuggling and bootlegging rings were put out of commission and their leaders sentenced to jail. Reports at the close of the year, however, indicated that many big bootlegging corporations still are in existence. Administrators here for a week's conference have been informed that serious problems confront the enforcement machine in the next year.

Seize 2,500,000 Gallons

Over 2,500,000 gallons of whisky, wine, cider and malts were seized by the federal authorities, a considerable decrease over the year before, although captures of boats and automobiles were heavier.

A survey of enforcement showed that the average fine for persons convicted in the federal courts was $150 and the average jail sentence 140 days. A majority of those arrested were convicted. The best record for the percentage of convictions was made in the Chicago and Montana districts.

Reports showed a greater number of violations than in any preceding year since the Eighteenth Amendment became effective. While the year resulted in a decrease in smuggling over the seaboards and less diversion of industrial alcohol, liquor running over the borders was heavier, while home brewing, wine-making and illicit distilling apparently was on the increase.

Notwithstanding the record, however, Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, said he believed over a greater part of the nation there is a swing of public opinion for law enforcement. Co-operation of the state and local authorities with the federal dry organization has been better during the last year, excepting in the "wet districts" of the country, he said.

Officials admitted that in New York and a number of other northeastern seaboard states there virtually is no co-operation from the local authorities and that effective enforcement is not possible without a vast increase in the prohibition army.

Administrators from these districts practically have been told by prohibition heads to "do the best you can do with the forces available." Few of the wet centers will receive reinforcements during the coming year, unless at the expense of other districts, since the prohibition appropriation will be $13,000,000 the same as last year.

At today's conference the field chiefs were given a lecture in economy and warned to make their budgets "go as far as possible." Strict accounting for all money expended also will be required. In the past year Comptroller General J. R. McCarl has denied the payment of a considerable sum of prohibition enforcement money on the grounds of illegal expenditure.

Behind the Screen

Elinor Boardman, film star, has just returned to the Coast after making a trip to New York to take scenes in "The Crowd," a picture in which she is playing the leading part.

WE have been observing, of late, persistent attempts on the part of moving picture producers, often with the co-operation of authors, to bring to the screen, novels of acknowledged literary merit. To the disappointment of the discriminating viewers, however, these attempts have proved a failure. Where the difficulty lies is hard to determine. It would seem that, as yet, film art is a much undeveloped industry, mostly mechanical in its use.

And little wonder, too, when one considers its short existence. Only a generation ago it seems any one who could buy a camera, build a shack and induce a few jobless actors to earn a few dollars, could produce a picture. Of course, since then, great changes have been brought about and the screen now is attracting the interest of real artists.

Thus, fully realizing the shortcomings of the filming of literary works at the present time, one hears with satisfaction that real gems of literature, such as Bernard Shaw is contributing to the world, will not be deformed and misinterpreted to suit the films and certain groups of film audiences. It is a well known fact that film producers have for a long time pleaded with this great writer for one of his plays. And there were times when some eager producer even issued report that this or that by Bernard Shaw was to be filmed. But very promptly Shaw, himself, would come forward with some whimsically witty denial of his consent to the "canned entertainment."

This very attitude of the film world so eager to attempt to add to their productions famous literary works, regardless of the sacrifice in its interpretation, would indicate lack of artistic understanding. Surely, if sincere, they must see and appreciate the unsurmountable obstacles. Why, then, devote so much effort and money towards drama which cannot be satisfactorily filmed just to be able to attach the name of some literary celebrity? If the same steps were taken toward the improvement of film art in its own sphere, real advancement of screen entertainment could be achieved.

Great Garbo is shown in a newly imported movie, made in Europe some time ago, and entitled "Streets of Sorrow." It has to do with postwar Vienna.

Dantchenko, of the Moscow Art Theater is contributing "Tempest", an original story of the time of Napoleon for John Barrymore's next film. Great Nissen and Louis Wolheim will appear in the cast.

"Her Cardboard Lover", currently successful stage play, will be filmed shortly with Clara Bow in the lead.

UNUSUAL SUIT OVER ESTATE ENDED IN COURT

Appellate Court Affirms Decision of Other Tribunals in Pangborn Case

Litigation over the estate of Thomas W. Pangborn, prominent farmer who formerly resided in Big Island Township, has been brought to a close following court proceedings which have been pending since two years ago.

The case, one of the most unusual in the history of Marion County, is decided in a report of the court of appeals ruling received by the county clerk here yesterday. The appellate tribunal has affirmed the rulings of both the probate and common pleas courts and it was announced today that the case will not be carried to the supreme court.

The controversy developed as the result of four children of Mr. Pangborn having died following his death. Corey W. Pangborn, executor of the Thomas W. Pangborn estate, maintained that as the consequence of the death of the four children their shares of the estate should go to the surviving heirs.

Start Suit

Executors of the estates of the four deceased children started suit in probate court, claiming the right to share in distribution of the property equally with the heirs still living.

Their contention was upheld by Judge McNeal in probate court and the case was carried to the common pleas court, where McNeal's ruling was affirmed. The executor of the Thomas W. Pangborn estate then filed a petition in error in the court of appeals.

As a result of the appellate court ruling, the property will be divided among three surviving children of Thomas W. Pangborn and the estates of the four deceased.

Victorious Litigants

The litigants who scored a victory in the suit are John Holland, executor of the estates of Mrs. Mary Holland and Susan Pangborn, Hayes Thompson, executor of the estate of Ruth Pangborn and Fred L. Carhart, executor of the estate of Mrs. Josephine Powelson.

Carhart & Warner and Hayes Thompson were attorneys for the estates of the deceased heirs and John H. Clark represented the executor of the Thomas W. Pangborn estate.

The case was heard and decided in the court of appeals by Judges Phil M. Crow and Kent W. Hughes. Judge Charles M. Justice of this city, third member of the tribunal, did not participate because of the fact that the suit came before him while he was judge of the common pleas court here.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD SCHUYLER LEWIS

Today was a hot dry day that makes folks think of ice cream so soon as he wakes up and if a dog had anything to think with he would think today for ice cream too. Jubilee raised about five cream and looked at me, and he was panting with his tongue hanging out and looking happy. So I got up and let him down by the rope in his stall and got into my pants and went down and done the milking.

All the bunch but the Lost Bag of Tripe were there, and we made it up that we would go around to the drug-store on the way to the pasture and see if one of us could get a job hopping running-boards and whichever got it would work all day and then take his pay in ice cream which he would whack up with the rest of the bunch. So when we had fed our faces we went around that way, and there was a fat setting out in front on a box and he had a white coat and white apron and white hat on, and it was the Lost Bag of Tripe, and just as we were going to tell him what we were thinking about his job a man and a lady come up and the lady ordered a vanilla ice cream soda and the man ordered a limeade and when the Lost Bag of Tripe came out he had a chocolate ice cream cone and a limeade and the man told him to take it back and get what the lady ordered, and the Lost Bag of Tripe said to us: "Which one of you wants this?" And we all hollered that we did, and I got it.

The dirty crook painted me all over the map with it and ducked into the drugstore, and I was chocolate from my eyebrows all down over my face and the front of myself, and then he came sailing out with a tray and an ice cream soda on it, and the man and woman were laughing like they thought it was a good joke, and the Lost Bag of Tripe was grinning too, the dirty crook and standing on the running board waiting for them to get done, and when they got done and all the glasses and everything were on the tray Feeble held the drug store screen door open for him and he came running against the sidewalk as fast as he could come, and she let go of the door just in time so that it was shut just far enough for him to crash into the edge of it with all his might, and all the glasses went off the tray onto the concrete and busted and the tray folded up and the edge of the door hit him in the nose and he was sitting down amongst the mess when the drug-store man came running, and he wanted to know what the matter was, and Feeble said things had come to a pretty pass when a lady who was coming into a drugstore to buy something had to be run into by a kid in that fashion, so he helped the Lost Bag of Tripe up by the collar and away from the drugstore with a skate in the pants.

Jubilee raised his head up and looked at me

Banty got the job. We'll all be there Saturday.

Peter's Adventures

A Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

PROTECTED BY A PROMISE

THE little lady in brown glanced over her shoulder and for the first time caught sight of the chain glistening through the shallow water.

Neither E. Z. Beaver nor the Boy needed to say another word. She knew at once what that meant.

"A trap a dreadful trap and in our own dear pond!" shrieked she "Oh, Boy, how sorry I am to have been so rude! But for you my babies might have been fatherless tonight.

"Think of the time, though, we have wasted in talking. You should have made the rounds of the pond, husband, and warned the neighbors. It is only good luck that has kept one of them from swimming into it."

"'Tis more than good luck, 'tis good management, wife," declared E. Z.

"THERE, DON'T YOU FEEL BETTER NOW?" TAILS WAGGING."

Beaver, and linked his front paw affectionately into Peter's arm.

"You needn't look so anxious, my dear. There is no longer any need to warn the folks of that particular trap. The Boy here has filled it full of stones. For tonight at least we are in no danger. As for tomorrow"—

Mrs. Beaver interrupted him.

"Tomorrow—oh, tomorrow must not find us here. When the trapper returns and finds out what has happened our lives will not be worth a copper. He will set his trap again and in a different place. We must move tonight."

Mrs. Beaver caught her breath in a sob and once more wiped a tear from her eye.

"I think it will be the death of me to have to leave my dear old home—the wigwam that you and I built husband, and right next door to the house where I was born."

This time Peter did not find it so hard to find something comforting to say to the little day in brown.

"You'll not have to move, Mrs. Beaver. Don't cry any more. I am going to take your message back to my people, and I can promise you that there will be no more traps set in this pond."

And Peter knew that after he had told his father what Mrs. Beaver had said the furry brown folks would be in no more danger.

One might have thought someone had given Mrs. Beaver a handful of fresh bark, she was so pleased at the Boy's promise.

"Really and truly! Do you mean it?" cried she. "Can husband and I keep right on living in the old home pond?" She threw her paws around the boy and Peter felt a Beaver kiss upon his cheek.

"Oh, how I wish I had bitten out my tongue before I said such mean things to you! Forgive me, Boy, do and come with us to the dam. The whole tribe is at work by this time and wondering what has become of us. It is dark enough now to work. There! Don't you hear the tails whacking? Those old chores would miss their merry sound!"

RECESSIONS FOLLOW IN WAKE OF PRICE ADVANCES

Undertone of Market Bullish; General Trend of Quotations Upward

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks steady. Industrial stocks firm. Domestic bonds inactive. Foreign bonds firm. Call money four per cent. Grain steady. Copper steady. Oil steady. Cotton steady. Rubber steady. Sugar steady. Pig iron steady. Foreign exchange steady.

New York, July 12—Stock prices today were generally higher but there was some profit taking and as a consequence recessions followed in the wake of advances. Buying continued good, however, and the undertone of the market was bullish and the price trend upward.

New high records made by some stocks in early trading but eased off slightly later on realizing sales. These stocks included Baldwin Locomotive which reached a new peak of 244, up three and a half points, but reacted to 241 about midday. Others that attained a new high level were American Can, Union Carbide & Carbon, Sears Roebuck, Timkin Roller Bearings, Colorado Fuel & Iron, Westinghouse Electric and National Lead & Commercial Solvents B. National Distillers was in keen demand and spread nearly five points to 42 3-4.

United States Steel advanced over a point to 123, a new high for the movement. There was heavy buying of steel throughout the forenoon.

Independent Steel issues, including Colorado Fuel & Iron, were in good demand, too. They reflected the expectations that earnings for the steel companies for the second quarter will be better than had been anticipated.

There was also a good demand for standard securities such as American Can, Allied Chemical & Dye, American Smelting & Refining & General Electric.

Gains of from one to two points were made in most of the railroad stocks which were active. Such advances were made in stocks of Atchison, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Southern Railway, Lehigh Valley and Nickel Plate. Speculative rails were less active and Motor stocks were sluggish and moved within a narrow range. Mack Truck continued under pressure, declining one and three quarter points to 93 3-4. The Dodge Brothers issues, however, were strong in response to the improved earnings shown for the second quarter, the common advancing 1 3-4 and the preferred over 2 points. General Motors ruled slightly higher.

Oils held firm but trading in this group was only moderate in volume. Lago was a feature, advancing over a point.

Trading was heavier than yesterday, sales up to 1 o'clock this afternoon being 1,080,700 as compared with 1,029,700 the corresponding hour Monday.

Call money was unchanged at four per cent.

SPIRIT OF COMPROMISE PERVADES NAVAL PARLEY

Both British and American Delegations Apparently Are Under Orders

Geneva, July 12—The spirit of compromise pervades the tri-partite naval disarmament conference today, with both the British and American delegations apparently under instructions from their home government that some sort of an agreement must be reached.

Private conversations are in progress regarding the latest British proposals, the gist of which seems to be that each nation shall be permitted to retain a certain amount of what is considered obsolete tonnage, such tonnage not to be considered in the limited total tonnage. Such a suggestion was made by Bridge in the recent League of Nations preparatory conference but at that time Great Britain disapproved it.

At present the representatives seem to center about the number of 20,000-ton cruisers that shall be permitted, with the United States insisting that it should have 25 such cruisers, while Great Britain wants the number limited to 15.

Stenos Work Slower When Boss Talks Loudly, Claim

HAMILTON, N. Y., July 12—The boss telling jokes and talking within earshot of the office stenographer, slows her up so that she doesn't get half her work done, according to Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the psychological laboratory at Colgate University here.

Stenographers are feminine, even if they are stenographers, and are prone to listen, even though unwillingly and this prevents them from doing efficient work, says Dr. Laird who has been doing considerable work in experimenting on the effect of noise about the office.

His views were recently expressed before the National Association of Office Managers. Dr. Laird says this:

"Don't tell jokes or hold interesting conversations in the office. The noise decreases the stenographer's efficiency. Offices should be located high enough to avoid the sound of auto sirens reaching the billing clerk's ears. These sounds reduce his efficiency.

the workers can do at least 5 per cent

"When quiet reigns in an office, all the workers can do at least 5 per cent more work than when it is noisy, we found," Dr. Laird said. "Noise in an office makes an individual burn energy at a rate as high as 25 per cent greater than under quiet conditions.

Women Suffer Equally

"Noise is no great respector of sexes. Women suffer from it equally with the men. We were surprised at that. The sound of interesting conversation, we found, cuts into a working individual's output. If you must tell stories, tell them outside the office.

"Auto siren noises are the worst detractions in an office. Unusual noises, not anticipated, come next, while the intense hum of a group of office workers is very detrimental.

"The greater skill a person has, the more detrimental effect noise has upon him.

"Noise increases the tension of all muscles of the body, and it is this increased tension which causes fatigue so quickly. We are in an age of increasing noise, for every year machines are made which add to the total of noise."

Dr. Laird's conclusion is as interesting as it is unique.

"To escape this onslaught which the human ear, accustomed to quiet for thousands of centuries, is unable to cope with, we should turn the future years into an age of noise absorption. That is one of the solutions—absorption by wall covering. We must strike to kill noise."

SHEEP CLAIMS OF $3,828.18 PAID IN YEAR

Increase of $454.05 Over Amount of Preceding Year, Reports Show

Claims amounting to $3,822.18 were paid for sheep killed or maimed by dogs in Marion County during the last year, the annual report completed today by County Auditor Earl E. Thomas disclosed.

This is an increase of $454.05 over the amount paid the preceding year but is $1,851.00 less than the payments in 1926, which established one of the highest sheep casualty records in the history of the county.

The report, which covers the year ending June 30, 1927, shows that 235 sheep were killed and 85 injured by attacks from dogs. During the preceding year there were 176 killed and 232 injured, while casualties in 1925 were 280 killed and 146 injured.

Expect Decrease

Enforcement of the new dog warden law, which goes into effect on Aug. 10, is expected to greatly decrease sheep losses and if the enforcement is 100 per cent, effective the damage toll may be almost entirely eliminated.

Under provisions of the law, all dogs are supposed to be locked up or otherwise prevented from running at large during the night. This rule will apply to the period between sundown and sunrise.

Plans for enforcement of the law and probable appointment of a warden and assistants are to be outlined at a conference of the county auditor and commissioners this week.

To Keep Census

The wardens will keep a complete and accurate dog census of the county. The report of Auditor Thomas shows that last year licenses were issued for 3,402 dogs, 3,152 female and 340 male. It is estimated that there are probably twice that many dogs in the county and it will be the duty of the wardens and his aids to locate those not listed at this time.

The number of persons raising and marketing dogs showed an increase last year, 20 kennel licenses having been issued, the largest total on record for any year.

License fees are as follows: male dogs, $1; female, $3; kennel, $10.

Total of Fees

Collection of these fees last year brought a total of $4,638.25 into the dog and kennel fund, from which sheep claims are paid. At the beginning of the year there was a balance of $8,711.68, making a total of $13,349.70 available for payment of claims.

Total disbursements were $4,211.18, including the $3,822.18 paid in claims and $389 for services of appraisers. This leaves a balance of $9,138.52 in the fund for claims to be allowed by the commissioners at their first meeting in December. Claims are passed upon annually on that date.

Thomas forwarded his report to the auditor of state today.

Maximum Non-Skid

The wide, deep groove running circumferentially around the tire with the unusually effective non-skid tread, gives the maximum protection against skidding. The result of which the grooves are cut into the tire affords clear cut non-skid features without affecting the easy riding properties.

MINE UNION OFFICIALS DECRY WAGE PROPOSAL

Says Raise Would "Pauperize" Men and "Starve Their Families"

Columbus, July 12—Claim that the latest proposal of Ohio coal operators to pay miners on the basis of $5 per day "would pauperize every miner in Ohio and starve their families" is contained in a joint statement issued here today by Lee Hall, president, and George W. Savage, secretary-treasurer, Ohio United Mine Workers.

"It is nothing less than brutal for the operators to make such a proposal," continued Hall and Savage. "Ohio operators are attempting to mislead the public in a most shameful manner in regard to the wage scale which they have offered to the miners of Ohio.

"Operators are telling the public that they offered the coal miners a $5-a-day wage scale," continued Hall and Savage. "The fact is they have done nothing of the kind. They are offering the miners wages as low as $2.75 a day.

"Under the operators' proposal, a number of the men would receive $2.75 or $3 daily. The coal loaders, comprising 75 per cent of the men employed in the mines at the proposed rate of 56 cents per ton, would not average $4 a day, some would get $4.80 and a few would receive the maximum of $5 a day.

"The operators ought to tell the public the truth about their ridiculous wage proposal," the joint statement said.
